Future bright in Duluth

Mayor Nancy Harris has a changing view outside the windows of Duluth City Hall.

Businesses have recently been opening and new facilities are being constructed with more on the way.

It's an exciting time in downtown Duluth, Harris said.

"There is a lot of potential and a lot more is going to happen," she said. "For a business person, I think they really like that Duluth offers a unique walkable area."

With upcoming additions such as the Street Smarts building, a new coffee shop called Chocolate Perk, and Pure Taqueria, Duluth will become a busier place in the coming months.

"There will be 100 people coming to downtown Duluth every day when these open," Harris said.

Duluth recently hired an economic development manager, Chris McGahee, to help Duluth continue moving forward.

"I'm real excited about the new economic manager," Harris said. "I think that's a big step for the city and I'm really happy about it."
